lol... Well, you don't want to rent a van and sleep in the back with the engine running to keep you warm. Read yesterday somebody died from fumes that way. Get a nice sleeping bag or plenty of blankets.

I had two friends die from carbon dioxide poisoning because they were sleeping in the bed of a truck and only had the windows of the cap cracked an inch.

I'm not worried about any of that. I live in Maryland.

For those who want more affordable accommodation, take Route 1 (Richmond Hwy) southbound, pass Crystal City, Alexandria toward Fort Belvoir. Plenty of chain and mom-n-pop motels to choose from in the areas along the main road. Only 20-30min from DC (depending on the traffic).

Very true, likely due to large low-income Hispanic population but Hispanic ghetto areas are drastically different from black ghetto areas in terms of much lower crime. Check out Fort Belvoir area safer than 74% of national average, even safer than Virginia's average <https://www.neighborhoodscout.com/va/fort-belvoir/crime#:~:text=With%20a%20crime%20rate%20for,Belvoir%20is%20one%20in%20141>.

Playing around out of curiosity still since I'm trying to figure out what's going on for you (i'm at a different hotel that hasn't been touched). Did you book direct through the Hyatt's website: <https://www.hyatt.com/shop/wasrw?location=Hyatt%20Regency%20Washington%20on%20Capitol%20Hill&checkinDate=2021-01-05&checkoutDate=2021-01-07&rooms=1&adults=1&kids=0&rate=Standard> or through this website, <https://www.guestreservations.com/hyatt-regency-washington-dc/booking> that's not hotel official but is pretending like they are, and says no rooms available?

Have you tried contacting Hyatt Regency directly? Don't tell them you had booked a room through Priceline, or that you're coming for Trump, just call them up. If they ask, LIE... like, "Man I have to be in DC at the worst possible time for a custody hearing with my ex-wife, can you help me out? You have anything?"
